A TALE OF A MOSE. BY C. F. ADAMS

'Twas a hard case that which happened in Lynn Haven't heard of it, eh? Well then to begin, There's a Jew down there whom they call "Old Mose," Who travels about and buys old clothes—

Now Mose—which the same short for Moses—Had one of the biggest kind of noses—Had a sort of an instep in it, And he fed it with snuff about once a minute.

One day he got in a bit of a row With a German Chap who had kissed his frau, And trying to punch him a la Mose, Had his nose cut off close up to his face.

He picked it up off the ground And quickly back in its place 'twas bound, And keeping the bandage upon his face, Until it had fairly healed in place.

Alas for Mose! 'Twas a sad mistake Which in his haste that day did make; For, to add still more to his bitter cup, He found he had placed it wrong side up.

"There's no great loss without some gain," And Mose says, in a jocular vein, He arranged it so for taking snuff, As he never before could get enough.

One thing by the way, he forgets to add, Which makes the arrangement rather bad, Although he can take his snuff with ease, He has to stand on his head to sneeze.

What Became of It.

Two men were sitting together in a smoking car on the Danbury Railway the other morning, when one of them observed to the other:

"I lost as lively a colt as you ever saw last Winter."

"After a pause the addressed party inquired: "Did it die?" "Die?" repeated the loser somewhat resentfully, "how could I have lost it, if it hadn't died?" "I didn't know but it slipped through a crack in the floor," said the other man in an injured tone. Both lapsed into silence after that.

The skeleton of a cat walked into Ryan's store. Ryan seeing her, bawled out, "Mickey, didn't I tell ye a month ago to fade that cat a pound of mate a day until ye had her fat? "You did; and I'm just after fading her a pound."

"Has that cat ate a pound this mornin'?" "Yes sir," "Shure, I think it's a lie ye're telling. Bring me that scale. Now bring me that cat." The cat turned the scale at exactly one pound.

"There didn't I tell ye she had eaten a pound of mate this mornin'?" "All right, my boy; there's yer pound of mate; but where the devil's the cat?"

A pious planter owned a negro in connection with another man for whom he felt a bit of carnal hatred. He took a sweet revenge, however, by praying, "O Lord, be pleased to bless my half of Pompey." What would become of his half of Pompey if the other man's half should happen to die never entered his head or heart.

Two friends were passing a church one evening, when a strong smell of burning leather pervaded the air. "I wonder if that is the odor of sanctity," said one. "I think it must be," was the quick reply, "for it smells of sales."

A boy has written a composition on the turtle, in which he says: "A turtle is not so frisky as a man, but he can stand a hot coal on his back longer without squalling."

The following order was recently left on the slate of a New Hampshire doctor: "Doc, cum up to ther house; the old man has got snaf in his lutes an' rais'n' kalm."
